PRUDENTIAL OFFICE

Scope of Work: Design
Client: Prudential
Location: Ho Chi Minh City
Completion Date: 2022

Maximum flexibility and complete autonomy in work are key elements in this human-oriented renovated project for Prudential office as it made full use of the philosophy of a new design style - AGILE office. With the AGILE mindset, workers are encouraged to physically choose whatever setting best suits the activity they're doing at any given time rather than assigned positions, which helps connecting processes, people and technology in order to create a dynamic workforce.

To further fulfill Prudential's intention to focus on their staff's wellbeing, DBA Interiors prioritizes the use of healthful ergonomic office equipment and furniture so that they can adjust their desks and chairs to suit their best postures, making sure their comfort levels are maxed out and their productivity is boosted up. Many recumbent bikes are put in many corners for exercising once they are tired of sitting in one place to work.

Neutral colors like black, grey and white are mainly used to create an atmosphere of security, reliability, modesty and maturity of a global life insurance company. But it doesn't look boring at all thanks to the very interesting combination with other pastel colors like yellow, pink and mint, creating this office unique vibe from every corner of working areas to the triangle-shaped pantry.

Furthermore, diverse plants are put in various corners, fulfilling our innate desire to connect with the nature and evoking the reminder of the brand's mission to protect the environment.

HAM NGHI CO-WORKING SPACE

Scope of Work: Design

Client:

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2021

The new Ham Nghi Co-working space designed by LAMCA is supposed to be the perfect place for every kind of company.

In order to create an aspirational office of flexibility, engagement, and hospitality, LAMCA gave an effective layout that is not only to enhance the spatial experience in which it can be fully utilized to serve its purpose, but also to increase employee productivity.

As a shared working environment, it is important to maintain a rather subtle & minimal design approach in order to create a harmonized environment within the interior space. Therefore, the selection of material proportion and how they are being implemented is vital to sustain the above-mentioned design approach. As such, we identify these core elements of material finishes in this concept in order to achieve the above objective: CEMENT TEXTURING- WHITE / BEIGE SURFACING- WOOD FINISHING- BLACK METAL. These core material finishes will form the foundation of the overall visual presentation of the entire space. Combination with random greeneries and mixture of accent colour furniture & loose fixtures, the resulting atmosphere shall create a semi-monochromatic and yet a subtle touch of vibrant interior that breathes life and vitality into the space.

In addition to that, the whole floor in the working space is covered with high-quality wood, which creates an attractive look for the office. The subtle hue from this material helps provide a sense of warmth and elegance.

Another emphasis of this design is the practical application of the lighting system. Different kinds of bulbs are used depending on particular sections and the aims of using light. For instance, the main working space which requires a rich source of light is equipped with long LED lights that provide a necessary amount of brightness. Client: Lazada Group

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2017

Desire to create a friendly working environment that encourages creativity and connection between employers, the office's design is produced in the most functional and decorative approach.

Brilliant decoration is a special factor that makes up the first and foremost impression of the office. In order to put it into practice, a wide range of distinctive hues is utilized in embellishment, showing a vivid and inspirational spirit. More specifically, warm and cool colors, which remarkably go with walls and other decorative elements such as logos, making an attractive contrast to space. Along with it, there are other eye-catching decorations that are notable, such as a green corner, curvy stair, and stylish wavy bench.

While decoration fulfills the aesthetic purpose, interiors participate in completing the practical aspect of the design. Patterned carpet runs through the whole office giving an appealing surface that links the separate parts together as a whole. Besides, there is the use of glass as partitions to divide the office into smaller rooms, which ensures the connection between space. However, these transparent dividers still satisfy the demand for privacy since they are designed with blurred effect which acts as a subtle barrier for the inner space of each room.

D-HOMME SALES GALLERY & SHOW UNITS

Scope of Work: Design & Build

Client: DHA Corporation

Location: Kinh Duong Vuong Street, District 6, Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2019

Modern and unexpected: these are the words that best describe this project. On a clean white or monochromatic background, the colors, shapes, patterns, and materials are maximized to be some not-so-little fun emphasis. The complementary color scheme is used the most, with no blending at all. They are just shapes of green-reddish orange, cool blue-warm yellow, and cool blue-warm red that are placed next to each other.

Besides that fun color pop style, unexpected curves, and abstract patterns are also a part of the party side by side with rough and straight edges. They present in the shapes of furniture, patterns of decorations, art pieces, and even in the design of tray ceilings. Although the textures of the materials used are mostly matte and velvety as a clean canvas for the pop of gold or marble here and there, they are also sometimes the star of the room filled with reflective materials.

Glancing through space, sometime the eyes will want to rest of some Eastern traditional patterns, objects (like the blue stairs or the lucky money tree), or the bold fun illustration, as they suddenly stand out on the clean modern background. Despite carrying all those fun elements, the designs do not let go of the elegance thanks to the right balance of use. This brings to the vibe of the design of edgy elegance.

Scope of Work: Design & Build

Client: CapitaLand

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2018

Vintage presence in modern, and natural presence in an industrial domestic zone: these designs feel like the integration of everything in one. Dark green, shades of browns and warm lights, altogether, they recall to the house just every feeling of wandering in the jungle.

Their presence in leather screaming out, even more, the heart of wildness. The almost exposed designed ceiling used in the showroom and the randomness in lighting installation add a bit of fun and edginess. The huge wooden piece of modern art is the eye-hooking point in the main lobby.

Thus, placed into a dark background, the piece stands out even more. With the alluring and glittering effects thanks to the random placement of lights, the help of a highly reflective floor, and the golden curtain behind it, the piece leads visitors in a fantastic fairy jungle.

Stepping into the living zone, the designs feel softer and less wild, the color choice now feels more retro, which is enhanced by the choice of such materials like leather, wood, and velvet. However, they are not just all about historic elegant vibe; the randomness of placement, the clean and bold color blocks breath in a spirit of modern. Such a living zone like this blows into an industrial busy life a sense of freshness and relaxation.

In addition to that, the floor is installed with highly reflective marbles with abstract wavy patterns; and there are rose-gold decorations here and there to add some edgy and elegant touches.

This results in the glittering and luminous effects in the light reflection, which turns the floor into a peaceful flowing river under a warm subtle atmosphere. On top of all is the use of matte blue pieces for balancing out the whole design and adding emphasis onto the beautiful backdrop. It also suggests a strong association with water that supports the flow of feelings in these projects, and also ties the elements together.

SWAN CITY CLUBHOUSE

Scope of Work: Design & Build

This project is inspired by swan with a tropical summer vibe. The showroom is designed with a welcoming openness towards nature through a large broad view window. The designs in overall follow a color pop style on a minimal bright backdrop.

A tall wooden slat ceiling with installed downlights helps balance out the brightness of the room, while the use of reflective materials like granites and marbles help reflect lights, brightening the whole space. The dark pieces of furniture are neatly put in, adding some emphasis on a white backdrop for the eyes to rest on.

The show units make use of warm wood and non-reflective materials as a clean canvas for pops of colors (like pastel cool blue, yellow, pink, etc) through pieces of furniture like chairs, carpets, pillows or even plants and wooden or velvet add-ins on the walls. For one of the dark background zones, the glowing lights installed from beneath the shelves are a highlight to look at.

The children's room is another zone with a dark background setting. This room has a playfulness use of a split complementary color scheme that still carries the summer vibe to match with the whole project. Overall, the whole space shows a fun summer vibe but still maintains a clean neat look.

With a total built area of 1000 square meters, this complex consists of two separate yet attached parts: the main hall with simple and elegant designing style, and the colorful, youthful studying space.

The main hall involving a large waiting area is decorated with white as the dominant color that provides relaxation and comfort. To make it a little extraordinary there is the distinctive appearance of blue efficiently used for interiors and scattered squares on the ceiling. Large glass windows and doors are widely used to provide natural light as well as connect inner and outer space.

In contrast to hall design, the studying space is highlighted with extra colorful decoration and wooden interiors. Furniture with several colors is opted to make space more lively and eye-catching as a place for the youth. The low wooden fence serves as partitions between particular sections and corridor, creating an open and connective environment.

With the same aim of usage, glass is used as transparent dividers to separate classrooms from the corridor, establishing a close link between the divisions. However, it also makes sure of privacy since glass is decorated with bands of the stripe which serves as a barrier for the inner space.

Color is an outstanding feature that creates a powerful impression for the whole space. White and blue are efficiently combined to make a fascinating contrast, revealing a sense of elegance as well as youthfulness. Besides, the light brown from the interiors also serves as an amazing factor that makes up the highlights for space, bringing a feeling of trust and relief.

Besides color, wooden furniture and wood-like tiles play a significant role in facilitating the specialty of this architecture. This type of material radiates warmth and makes the spaces more inviting, which makes sense of its usage for the decoration of the pantry and waiting room.

Another modest yet subtle emphasis of this architecture is the arrangement of geometric patterns in embellishment. To make a strong impression for the lobby, a group of eye-catching geometrical design is decorated on the ceiling, creating an attractive feature to draw attention as well as set out a novel decorative detail. Likewise, the top surfaces of the pantry and waiting room get adorned with unique shapes, which adds an amazing look to space.

YOLA TRAN NAO

Scope of Work: Design & Build

Client: YOLA

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2019

Attempt to bring about an architectural environment for the youth, YOLA Tran Nao was designed with most of the effort put into providing a sense of activeness and modernity.

As usual, white and blue serve as dominant and symbolic colors for the whole structure. Nonetheless, they are used in a more novel way to withdraw the disinterest: give background for colorful hand-drawn pictures or color small yet lively wave patterns.

Along with the mentioned usage, these two hues also surprisingly play a significant role in widening space using visual effect. More specifically, in some classrooms, blue is used to paint half of the walls' height while the rest and ceiling are in white. As a result, it creates a visual illusion that space is vertically broadened, helping rooms to look more spacious and comfortable.

Last but not least, wooden interiors are utilized to make a significant highlight for the architecture. The extensive use of wooden furniture in conjunction with parquet and wood-look tiles create softness and welcoming spirit to observers. Besides, the bright tone from these interiors also emphasizes the modern look for this design as well as enhances the sense of elegance and friendliness.

Client: YOLA

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2019

With the practical use of modern style to design, Yola provides a fascinating architecture that displays not only modernity but also the delicate simplicity and high applicability.

To indicate the most considerable emphasis on this design, it must be how colors are used to highlight the inner space. White is utilized as the dominant hue for the overall structure, bringing relaxation and a state of relief. Meanwhile, blue plays as a special feature to make space more extraordinary. In classrooms, walls are painted in blue at half-height whilst the rest and ceiling are in white, helping to raise the height of the space.

For the sake of providing natural light, glass is applied as transparent barriers between the inner and outer space. This kind of material also takes place of brick walls to serve as partitions between classrooms, making space more open and connective.

The interiors used in decoration are details that make up the delicate and modern style for Yola's design. Naked lamps without any decorative elements are chosen to fit with the simplicity of the concept. Besides, there is the arrangement of some pots of plants for carrying green space as well as a sense of freshness to the room.

Scope of Work: Design & Build

Client: YOLA

Location: Ho Chi Minh City

Completion Date: 2018

Designed in a simple yet impressive way, Yola Binh Tan draws observers' attention by its attractive combination of colors, interior and architecture.

Since colors are the factors that make the first impression on vision, they are used differently in terms of decoration for each section. The lobby whose function is to welcome customers makes an attractive look through the notable blue. Meanwhile, the classrooms and common rooms are primarily painted in white as they are the place for concentration and relaxation.

The wooden interiors play an important role in specifying the design of Yola Binh Tan as well. Along with furniture, the usage of this organic material in small details such as door frames or staircase railing makes it a subtle highlight and appeals to observers' eyes.

Last but not least, other types of the interior are efficiently used to complete the aesthetic and functional aspects of this design. Several minimalist naked lamps on the ceiling in conjunction with geometric patterns in the lobby give space a unique look. In addition to that, the glass partitions between classrooms and corridors establish a spatial connection, yet ensure privacy thanks to the stripe patterns adorned on their surface.

Meanwhile, classrooms, where the learning process of children is taken place, get equipped with colorful chairs and tables to make a lively scene.

Functioned as a part for relaxation, the common room is furnished with lightcolored furniture that is made of wood. This kind of material enhances the sense of relief and creates tenderness for space, making it an ideal place for resting and recreation.

Other types of interiors are applied to fulfill the aim of providing a functional design. The low walls made of glass or wood serve as special partitions to divide space into particular parts, ensuring the need for separate but connective areas.
